March Horoscopes

In astrology, those born between March 1–20 are the Fish of Pisces. Fish feel things deeply, as in under-the-sea deep. These intuitive and creative people love to help others. Those born between March 21–31 are the Rams of Aries. As the first sign of the zodiac, Aries are bold, courageous, passionate, and somewhat impulsive, Rams dive headfirst into even the most challenging situations.

Glaze Gazette

"Life is 10% what happens to you and 90% how you react to it."

Happy March!

March brings with it, the promise of gardening and warmer, sunny days as Earth turns its frostbitten cheek to winter and springs forth from the vernal equinox. Daylight Savings Time is on March 8th! It is also National Women's Day! Then follows St. Patrick's Day on March 17th, and then we plan for Easter Sunday in April. Be prepared to have some fun in the activities department!

I also want to inform you all that I will be ending my employment with Summit Hill on March 11th. I have had a great time growing within and learning so much about you all. I will miss you greatly and I hope that this isn't a goodbye but see you all later. The team at Summit will all have me just a call away. I hope the rest of the time we have together is great.

~Asia

Activities Scoop

I cant believe spring is almost here! Time has flown bye this year ...maybe my awesome vacation had something to do with it? Anyways March is filled with some fun activities and events one of which is the Cock-A-Doodle Zoo that will be here at the end of the month! Hope to see lots of residents at activities this month! -Ashlie

Women of the World Unite

Women around the world will take to the streets promoting women's rights to celebrate International Women's Day on March 8. The first National Women's Day occurred on February 28, 1909, in New York. Theresa Malkiel, a factory-worker-turned-civil-rights-leader proposed the first celebration. Malkiel believed that socialism was the path toward the equality of women. When the men of the party showed no interest in equal rights for women members, Malkiel took it upon herself to organize her fellow women. The first Women's Day celebration was a show of strength for the women she organized. The struggle for women's rights was not unique to America. Across Europe, women were organizing for workers' rights and the right to vote. In 1910, at the International Socialist Women's Conference in Denmark, European activists established an international holiday modeled on Malkiel's. On March 11, 1911, International Women's Day was celebrated by over a million people in Austria, Denmark, Germany, and Switzerland. Women marched for the right to vote, to hold public office, and to enjoy equal opportunities for employment. Six years later, on March 8, 1917, International Women's Day marchers across Russia marched for "Bread and Peace," demanding an end to World War I, tsarism, and government-imposed food shortages. This marked the beginning of Russia's February Revolution (according to their old calendar). Seven days later, Tsar Nicholas II abdicated the throne, and women were granted the right to vote. Over the decades, the holiday has transformed from a socialist holiday to a mainstream celebration of women. The day is an official holiday in many countries, but the fact that it is not observed in many places speaks to the need to continue the fight for women's rights.
